DR. MARTIN LUTHER KING

Today's Army Receives Boost

Today's Army was given yet another boost in preparing for an end to the draft when Congress recently approved a 6.69 o/o pay increase. For the new male and female recruit, it means $307.20 monthly before taxes. Previous starting salary was $288.00 a month. In addition, the Army provides free room and board, complete medical and dental care and 30 paid vacation days annually.

Local Army representati ve, SFC Rollie M. Pratt, said that the pay increase is another step towards achieving an all volunteer Army by July 1, 1973. He claims that, "The Army has discovered two things that are important to young men and women considering an Army career- pay and educational benefits." "The new raise will help us move closer to the President's goal of zero draft," he added.

The pay boost is expected to be of considerable assistance in the Army's drive to enlist outstanding high school graduates. Along with that, the Army has refined many of its educational programs in recent months and expanded educational benefits.

SFC Pratt said, "With the increase in pay, the modernization of living quarters and the extnesive educational and travel opportunities, I'm confident the new Army will attract the kind of young men and women it needs."

Black History Week Observance

In observance of Black History Week, the Asberry Cultural Club is sponsoring a "Soul Festival" on Saturday, February 17, 1973 from 11:00 AM to 7:00 PM. The festival will be held at the City Association Clubhouse on both floors. There will be continuous entertainment, booths of all kinds and fun galore. Admission is free but the Soul Food Dinner is $2.00. Tickets may be purchased from any member of the Asberry Club or call BR2-8173 to have them mailed to you.

We would greatly appreciate it if you will support us in this endeavor. It should be a real fun day for all.

"WE PROUDLY SALUTE"
DR. MARTIN LUTHER KING, JR.

It is our privilege to commemorate this week the birthday of Dr. Martin Luther King, whose ideals, and the courage to express those ideals, catapulted him to a national prominence, & to a place in our hearts unequalled in American history.

We have been asked why we celebrate his birthday, rather than elect to hold an annual day of mouring on the anniversary of his tragic death.

We mourn, as do all good citizens, his passing at the hands of a warped assassin.

More significantly, however, we celebrate the life of this magnificent man. Dr. Martin Luther King would have preferred this. In life, he was a joyous and vibrant man, whose dedication to our common goals permeated every thought and act of his busy days.

Dr. King was a great leader and a great and balanced man. He approached his dangerous task of preaching his message with dignity and enthusiasm. He was not afraid to speak; he was not afraid to laugh; he was not afraid to demand the environment for all.

A contemporary of President John F. Kennedy, the lives of these two men were strangely similar, and strangely intertwined.

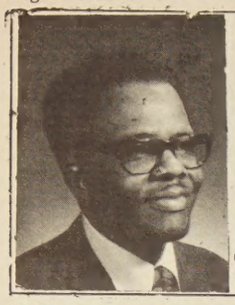
Like the fallen president, Dr. King brought us an attitude - he looked ahead. He preached the message of the hope of America; he changed our attitude from one of weariness, caution, and the crippling desire to play it safe to one of vigorous action and pride in ourselves as free men in a free society.

Dr. King sought not to change our government; instead he reached for fulfillment of the promise of America. It is fitting that one of the best, most succinct summaries of his famous doctrine of non-violence was given by President Kennedy in his speech on the James Meridith case.

"American's" said President Kennedy "are free to disagree with the law but not to disobey it. For a government of laws and not of men, no man, however prominent and powerful, and no man, however unruly or boisterous is entitled to defy a court of law. If this country should ever reach the point where any man or group of men by force or threat of force could long defy the commands of our courts and our Constitution, then no law would stand free from doubt, no judge would be sure of his write, and no citizen would be safe from his neighbors."

Such indeed, is the essence of the Doctrine of Non-Violence, & the thrust of Dr. Martin Luther King's life.

His doctrine, and his work, are as important as that of any man in history's pages. He gave greatly, as his widow can testify. His life should be remembered by special observance of his birthdate. Let our own state legislators from our 37th District, and the entire State Legislature, make January 15 a Washington State Holiday by state law. Then our congressional repre - sentatives can take it from there while we take it from here.



You Are Invited to the St. John Baptist Church So. 20th & J St. Tacoma, Wash. Sundays. 10am, -11am. We Offer Family Counseling & Spiritual guidance. Rev. J. A. Boles Pastor

The Death of a Pusher

Lim Seng, a 52-year-old Chinese printer, was executed yesterday in Manila for making and selling heroin. He was the first man executed in the Philippines since it received its independence from the United States in 1946. His death was ordered by President Ferdinand Marcos after officials claimed that Seng made millions pushing heroin and was responsible for the addiction of 10,000 Filipinos. "I see you have got a big crowd here, just like a fiesta crowd," Seng said a few moments before he died.

YOU'D BETTER BELIEVE IT

Maya Angelow (a most together sister) has finally recorded some of her prose and poetry. This album containing the works of this talented woman and entitled "The Poetry of Maya Angelow" can be found on aPerception LP, number PLP #32; and I hope to God you can find it at your favorite record store. (If not, call me).

If your head can get your body ready for the unadulterated black truth in poetic form, inter-spiced with some tasty jazz sounds for the hell of it; then "The Poetry of Maya Angelow" will become a treasured possession in your record collection.

However, there is a very strong possibility Maya's urgent and potent messages just might be too heavy for your soul, or an insult to your false intellectual levels...And if that be the case, then I'm sorry for you, but in the meantime, here's one of the poems from the album "The Poetry of Maya Angelow":

SEPIA FASHION SHOW

Their hair, pomaded, faces jaded
bones protruding, hip wise,
The models strutted, backed up and butted,
Then stuck their mouths out, lip-wise.

They had nasty manners, held like banners, while they looked down their nose-wise,
I'd see 'em in hell, before they'd sell me one thing they've wearing, clothes-wise.

The Black Bourgeois, who all say 'yah'
When yeah is what they're meaning
Should look around, both up and down before they set our preening.

"Indeed" they swear, "That's what I'll wear
When I go country clubing,"
I'd remind them please, look at them knees
They got a Miss Ann's scrubbing.

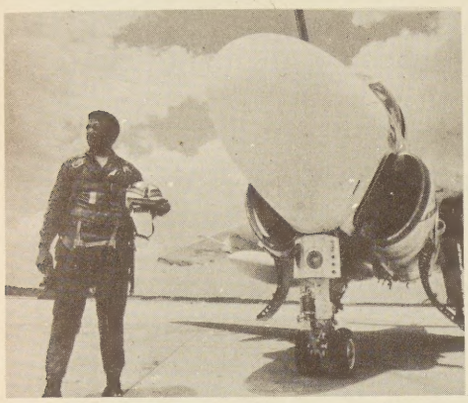
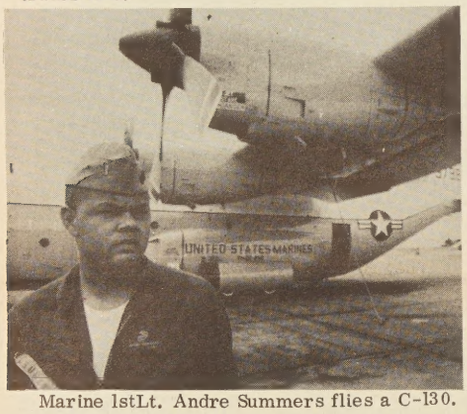
BLACK MARINES TAKE TO THE AIR



Marine lstLt. Emerson Carr flies one of the world's most sophisticated aircraft, Intruder A-6.



Marine lstLt. Andre Summers flies a C-130.

Although Marine pilots first took to the air in 1912, there were no black aviators in the Corps until about 20 years ago. Today about one out of every three black Marine officers is a flyer.

Among this growing number are three pilots at various stages in their careers who agree that the Corps offers experience, training and prestige hard to find elsewhere. And, contrary to popular belief, they all feel that good pilots are made, not born.

Only one, lstLt. Andre Summers of Washington, D.C., grew up wanting to be a pilot. The other two, Capt. Donald G. Ringgold of Detroit, and lstLt. Emerson F. Carr of Minneapolis, were in their late teens or early twenties when they decided that a pilot's life in the Marine Corps was their thing.

"Flying had always been my goal," says 25-year-old Summers. "I can still remember the thrill I used to get when my mother would take me to the airport to watch the planes take off and land."

Summers' father, now deceased, had a great deal to do with his joining the Marines. In World War II, the elder Summers had been among the first to integate the Corps; and, even then, he had been in a segregated unit. Still, he held a high regard for the training he received.

Summers was graduated from Springarn High School in Washington where he was senior class president, captain of the football team and president of the varsity club.

Next stop in his goal toward becoming a pilot was Morgan State College in Baltimore, where he received a degree in Business Administration. His first real taste of the military also came at Morgan State when Summers became the lieutenant colonel of the Army ROTC unit there. However, he decided to join the Corps because it gave him a chance to fly.

He is stationed at Cherry Point, N.C., and is a co-pilot of the hugh and powerful Hercules C-130 aircraft. The C-130's main Marine tasks are aerial refueling of jets and long-range transportation of troops or cargo. The plane has a range of 8,000 miles and cruises at approximately 400 miles per hour. It has a crew of five.

Between flights, Summers and his wife, Bernedette, entertain themselves at the base's many recreational facilities.

Capt. Donald Ringgold also flies a C-130 out of Cherry Point and his current duties include administrative flights for the wing staff and piloting his commanding general's aircraft. He is also the Operations Officer for his squadron.

Ringgold, however, didn't decide to become a pilot until he was in college, nor did he begin his career by flying conventional aircraft.

His first tour was as a helicopter pilot in Vietnam where he flew supply, medical and assault missions. When Ringgold returned to the States, he requested additional training to become qualified to fly the C-130's.

On a second tour in southeast Asia, Capt. Ringgold flew missions in Marine C-130s and visited Taiwan, Thailand, Hong Kong, Japan and Guam.

When not flying or spending time with his wife, Charlotte, and their five-year-old daughter, Capt. Ringgold uses his spare hours either hunting or fishing. The hunting is usually for deer and squirrel that abound on and near the base. He also owns a 19-foot fishing boat and sometimes goes nearly fifty miles out into the Atlantic, searching for king fish and blue fish.

First Lt. Emerson Carr pilots an Intruder A-6 aircraft out of Cherry Point on a different kind of mission. The A-6 is the Marine's subsonic, all-weather attack aircraft.

As pilot, Carr handles the aircraft and all communications. Beside him sits a navigator who uses sophisticated equipment designed to locate, track and attack targets at night and under all weather conditions.

Carr attended Minneapolis Central High School where he was an all-state defensive tackle. Football continued to play an important part of his life. At the Naval Academy, he played varsity ball as a middle guard and middle linebacker.

Upon graduation, Carr elected to become a Marine aviator and afterflight training he received his wings.

"I enjoy flying to the fullest," says Carr. "Not many people realize it but in sheer numbers and strength, Marine Air is bigger than most of the world's tactical air forces!"

There are several ways to become a Marine Aviator, according to Carr. He advises those willing to learn more about these career opportunities to contact a local Marine recruiter since the Marine Corps is currently undergoing an intensive recruitment campaign to attract more blacks and others to join officer training programs.

Carr, like his fellow officers at Cherry Point, enjoys a relaxed life off duty. He and his wife, Frances, have one son. While the younger Carr takes up a good portion of their time, the two still find time to play golf and participate in other pasttimes offered at the Marine Corps facility.

GOURMET CORNER

Fluffy Omelet - a Gourmet's delight: Its impressive, quick and elegant enough to serve to your fanciest friends and nutritious enough for a family meal. A truly fine cook is not judged by elaborate, exotic and costly dishes, but by his skill in producing such essentially simply ones. Italian cooks do all kinds of delicious things with an omelet which they love to eat. Nothing could be easier: Brown mushrooms, onions & 1 package of frozen spinach (thawed) & 1 basic fluffy omelet recipe; omitting green peppers & Celery. Delicious!

"Fluffy Omelet"

3 eggs
3 teaspoons cold milk
3 tablespoons butter
½ cup mushrooms
½ cup Diced Ham
6 tablespoons each of green pepper, celery or onion
3/4 tsp. salt
Freshly ground pepper to taste

In a French skillet melt butter. Beat eqqs and stir in remaining ingredients. Pour mixture all at once into the skillet. Cook, stiring mixture to cook evenly. Serve while still moist and creamy. Can be used to make sandwiches with English muffins by sprinkling grated cheese on top. Insert under broiler until lightly brown. Serves 4.

Black Justice???

What in hell is going on? Last week there was a robbery of a Service Station. Several people were picked up (by several, I'm talking about maybe 10 or 15) for an investigation of these charges. Some of these young men were picked up Friday night, January 12, 1973, locked up and had to appear before Judge Otto in District Court at 2 p.m., Monday, January 15, 1973, with no formal charges brought against them. If the state of Washington, with all of the taxes we pay, can't afford enough attorneys to look into these railroad jobs so they can at least come up with a charge within 72 hours, which the Law is supposed to give them, then it is my belief and the belief of others that they should be set free. At the time of this writing, the brothers are still incarcerated, waiting to go back to District Court at 2 p.m. today. What is going to happen? They've had overnight to get their head together, so who knows?

Something else was very interesting to me... The reasons they were taken to court Monday Afternoon: (1) To be told of their rights (the police were supposed to tell them this when they were picked up, (2) To make sure they (the system) wouldn't be bothered with any complaints about the 72 hours regulation, and (3) They want to be sure they don't or haven't lost any bodies. A fifth or sixth grader can come up with these kinds of explanations, but I had to get them from people who are "working" for the tax payers and I understand they are professionals. I repeat; What in hell is going on?

'Dee' Botley

P.S. 3:30 P.M. -- Two of the young men have been charged with Robbery -- Two are charged with Assessory to a Robbery After The Fact. In other words, if you have some money and spend some of it on me, I become an assessory.

Joe Frazier, and Foreman ready to fight

Heavyweight champion Joe Frazier will defend his title against unbeaten former Olympic heavyweight champ George Foreman Jan. 22 in Kingston, Jamaica, West Indies but his mind will be on the million dollar fight with Muhammad Ali from whom he took the title.

The fight which will be fought under the balmy coconut and plam trees in the West Indies will be beamed back to the city. The fight will be shown at the 369th Armory on Fifth Ave. at 143rd St., and at the RKO Fabian Theater in Paterson, N.J. Several other theaters will make announcements this week.

TACOMA MODEL CITIES PROGRAM 622 TACOMA AVENUE SO 593-4660

Executive Board Discusses Future Of Model Cities

The Model Cities Executive Board, at its Jan. 12 meeting, examined a proposed study which is important to the future of the Tacoma program.

The board took an important step toward preserving the Model Cities concept in Tacoma. It asked Board Chairman Junior N.R. Ellis to investigate a proposed study to incorporate some aspects of Model Cities into Tacoma City government.

The study would explore how social planning, evaluation, citizen participation, and other Model Cities functions could become a part of regular city government. Presently, the City has no organization for social planning. With the complex social problems of modern cities, Tacoma has been considering the need for social planning.

Another anticipated result of the study would be a plan to expand citizen participation. Community executive boards might be formed all over the City to get citizens more involved in solving their own problems and running city government.

The cost for consultant fees, project director, and computer services would be about $35,000.

The Executive Board approved acquisition of property at 25th and Sheridan Streets for a mini-park. The land would cost $5,956.44, which would leave about $2,000 for preparation of the site.

Several board members questioned the cost of the property and the lack of funds for preparing the park. Director Keith Palmquist said that the property would require minor renovation since it has been designated as an open-space park not requiring any major construction. Chairman Ellis said that the cost of the property was reasonable for that area.

A Mental Health Project which would bring services to the community was tenatively approved by the Board. The project would provide counselors in five Model Cities projects where the services would be readily available to residents. The plan could help many people who would not go to a clinic for counseling.

The board delayed action on determining the fate of the Central Employment Agency as operating agency for the Adult Outreach and Layman Education Projects. The board scheduled an emergency meeting for Jan. 15, to discuss the problem.

Dr. Allen Ratcliffe from the Comprehensive Mental Health Center presents a proposal for a Mental Health project to the Executive Board.

The Model Cities Executive Board approved purchase of this lot at 25th and Cushman Streets to be made into a mini-park.

Citizen Participation Hire's Planner's Aide

Model Cities has recently hired Mike Salako as a planner's aide for the Citizen Participation section.

Mr. Salako was born in Abeokuta, Western Nigeria. Afte two years at Olivet Baptist School Oyo in Nigeria, he came to the United States to continue his education.

Mr. Salako is presently attending the University of Puget Sound and hopes to complete a degree in business administration at the end of this year.

Education For Seniors

Bertie Ewards, director of the Model Cities Senior Citizens Center, will be the guest on the "Contact" program broadcast on KTVW, Channel 13, Jan. 16, from 9 to 10 a.m.

Harriet Williams, host of the Saturday morning talk show, said the program will center around education for senior citizens. The Senior Citizens Center has been expanding its classes and now includes a variety of subjects from motivational cybernetics to fancy bed making.

MATE FINDING JOBS FOR MINORITIES

The Minority Availability for Tacoma Employment (MATE), a Model Cities project, is not only finding jobs for minorities, but is also trying to establish the fact that skilled minorities, are available, according to Project Director, Bart Alford.

The MATE staff, consisting of a director, two employment counselors, and a secretary, goes into the community seeking professional, para-professional, and skilled minorities. "We recruit people from local colleges and technical institutions and people who want to upgrade themselves by getting a better position," Mr. Alford said.

The staff also contacts prospective employers to help make them aware that skilled minority individuals are available for employment. Mr. Alford said that many businessmen have been very enthusiastic about the minority employment project.

Services of MATE are available to all minorities, whether they live in the Model Neighborhood or not. Recently, the project received a letter from a man in Massachusetts who was looking for a job.

Even though the response to the project has been good, Mr. Alford thinks there are a lot of people who are not taking advantage of the project's services.

The project is planning two publications. An Availabiltiy Catalog will be published in the near future listing minority individuals who are seeking jobs and the skills they possess. Another publication put out by the organization is a periodic listing of jobs.

These are some of the jobs open to minorities according to MATE's current job listing:

Secretary I, Typing-$470 a mo. Power Keyboard Operator-$468-569 a mo. Teletype Operator-$460-620 a mo. Intermediate Mechanic Operator-$4.40 an hr. Mechanic Trainee-$5.75 an hr. Data Analyst Joins Model Cities Staff

Nancy Spears has joined the Model Cities staff as a data analyst in the Research and Evaluation section.

Mrs. Spears is a graduate of Pacific Lutheran University with a B.A. in math and social sciences. She has been working as a part-time instructor of math at Ft. Steilacoom and statistics at Pacific Lutheran University, Ft. Lewis Extension.

Mrs. Spears has lived in Tacoma for several years and has four children.

Ujamaa Plans Drama For Black History Week

The Ujamaa Culture and Recreation Center, a Model Cities project, is planning a musical and dramatic production to be presented during Black History Week in February, 1973.

Center Director Ellis Cain said that a community schoir is being formed for the event, and that the center is currently holding auditions for all voice parts. The production will also include a fashion show, a talent show, dancing, and cultural displays. For more information call 627-2117.

Mr. Cain also announced that the center is offering free courses in leather craft and wood carving on Mondays and Wednesday from 6:30 to 8:30 p.m. and on Saturday from 1:30 to 3:30 p.m. at the center.

Beginning Jan. 21, the center will sponsor weekend dances to continue through Feb. 24. Some of the bands scheduled for the dances are "Jonah's Whale," "Paul Richardson Band," "360 Degrees," "Pi-Cees," "Jammin' Jammers," and "Hot Ice." All dances begin at 9pm and last until lam. Admission is $1.50. In addition to dances, the center is planning talent shows, fashion shows, skating parties, and bowling parties.

Mr. Cain said, "We are beginning our remodeling plans and will be happy to accept any and all help we can get from the community."

Board Wants New Operating Agencies

In an emergency meeting Jan. 16, the Model Cities Executive Board recommended that the City of Tacoma not contract with the Central Employment Agency (CEA) to operate the Adult Outreach and Layman's Education Programs (LEP).

The first resolution passed at the meeting was a recommendation to City finance to release project funds to pay salaries. Neither staff has been payed because the City will not release any more money until all past expenitures by Central Employment Agency have been accounted for.

Board Chairman Junior N.R. Ellis opened the meeting by expressing his support of CEA and his hope that the agency could continue with the projects. When Joe Starling, director of CEA, said he couldn't say if he wanted to continue with the projects or not.

The board recommended that Model Cities negotiate contracts for Adult Outreach and LEP with new operating agencies. The resolution named the Tacoma School Board as a possible contracting agency for the Adult Outreach Project

The Adult Outreach Program was scheduled for City Council consideration Jan. 16, but Model Cities Director Keith Palmquist expected it would be dropped because of the Executive Board's action.

Rejection of CEA as an operating agency has resulted from poor fiscal management by CEA. Andrew Branch & Company has done as audit of the projects and found back taxes and other bills which have not been paid. Model Cities finance department is presently working with the project to account for all past expenditures. When this is accomplished, the City will release more funds to CEA to pay some of the outstanding bills. Arrangements have been made with the Internal Revenue Service to pay back taxes, according to Mr. Starling.

Handbook Answers Renters Questions

Who is responsible for repairs in your apartment or rented home? How and when can a landlord increase the rent on an apartment?

These are just a few of the questions answered in the "Tenant's Handbook" published by the Model Cities Housing and Physical Environmental Improvement Task Force. The handbook came out in December.

Responsibilities of both landlords and tenants are explained in detail in the booklet. Some of the topics discussed in the handbook are housing and fire code requirements, termination of tenancy, eviction, public housing tenants, and other important subjects.

If you would like a copy of the Tenant's Handbook, call the Model Cities office (593-4660) and ask for Don Hines.

Director Reports On Project's Progress

Model Cities Director Keith Palmquist reported to the Executive Board that there were rumors of Model Cities being cut from the President's budget.

He told the board that the Model Cities Directors Association has been working with the National League of Cities and the U.S. Conference of Mayors to ask the President for full funding of Model Cities.

Mr. Palmquist said, "Minorities particularly believe that their main hope for improving their condition lies in federal intervention and federal dollars. Access to federal money would end if put under control of local politicians answering to local white majorities. I tend to concur with this view. We may believe this could not or would not happen in Tacoma. Perhaps not, but I'm convinced that it would occur in most other cities around the country."

Several rehabilitation projects are planned for the near future, according to Mr. Palmquist. One of the major projects, rehabilitation of the Tacoma Boy's Club, is now under construction. The club is being remodeled in a cooperative effort by L.H. Bates Vocational-Technical Institute and Art Pearson Electrical and General Contractors.

In other construction projects, Art Pearson Contractors has been authorized to proceed remodeling the pool room, main room, kitchen and restrooms at the Malcolm X Center.

Plans are being prepared for construction of restrooms and a perimeter sidewalk at Ferry Park. Improvements at the Hilltop Day Care Center have been delayed by bad weather, but the remodeling is progressing.

The Model Cities staff is investigating complaints about the Property Rehabilitation and Employment Program. Any poor workmanship in home rehabilitation will be corrected to the satisfaction of the owner.

Mr. Palmquist reported that the Homemaker Project was terminated on Dec. 31, 1972, due to lack of funds. Model Cities is negotiating with the City Health Department to continue the project with a smaller staff.

Twelve second-year contracts have been signed, according to Mr. Palmquist. These projects are: Culture and Recreation Center, Tacoma Area, Child Tutoring, Environmental Health, Minority Contractor, Boy Scouts, Minority Availability for Tacoma Employment, Youth Outreach, Veterans Action, Progress House, Senior Citizens Center, Transportation, and Manpower Satellite. Several contracts are being signed, including Layman's Education Program, Hilltop Children's Clinic, Group Home, Career Opportunities Program, Adult Outreach, Public Defender, and Housing Development Program. Most of these projects will operate until Sept. 30, 1973.

Youth Health Seminar Planned

A Youth Health Seminar, sponsored by the Health and Youth Task Forces of Model Cities, is scheduled for Jan. 27, from 9:30 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. at the Ujamaa Culture and Recreation Center.

Some of the topics to be discussed are personal hygiene, health counseling, venereal disease, planned parenthood, and available health care facilities. Medical experts from the community have been invited to the seminar to talk on each topic.

A film and slides will be shown at the seminar, and refreshments will be served.

Community Involvement Specialist Harriet Williams said that representatives from Tacoma high schools and junior highs have been invited to the session.
